SPM | Strategic Project Management

Developing an explicit relationship between strategy and operations. Sustaining the creation of value.

Performances depending on motivational and charismatic leaders or tribal knowledge are not sustainable if the strategy is not linked to the processes. Strategies and the value proposition are dynamically updated, but the processes supporting them are not.

Communicate your strategy through your processes.

Program Outline

1 Describe the business strategy

Learn how to extract from the strategy the elements required by the SPM to understand the nature and the level of challenge of each objective.

2 Introduction to SPM. Operations & Strategy

Doing the things right doesn't guarantee to doing the right things. SPM focuses the change in the processes that have the larger impact.

3 Strategy key success factors

In what areas must the organization excel to achieve its objectives? Break them down into Key Success Factors' (KSF) and include them in the plan.

4 Processes and KSF gap analysis

Analyze the current performance and the level of support required. How to improve the operations to ensure the success of the strategy.

5 Solution management (Address the GAP)

Once the KSF, the process supporting it and the level of coverage are identified, it is necessary to manage the recommendations that will address the process gap.

Benefits

- Link strategy and operations
- Explore the objectives on KSF
- Improved thought leadership
- Better improvement governance
- Sustain the plan and the results

Who should attend

Leaders in performance management and/or organizational transformation, with responsibility on strategy or operations, and who see a dissociation between strategy and business processes in their current models. Teams interested in accelerating the generation of results calibrating the processes that affect the plan.

In the IN-HOUSE model, the client will be responsible to provide the infrastructure needed to conduct the event.
